FRONT COVER

The Dala Horse is a popular Swedish handicraft and souvenir. The name comes from its home province, Dalarna, Sweden. Dala Horses first appeared in the 1800's. Skills for creating the Dala Horse have been passed from generation to generation in Sweden. These skills can be seen in the two Hemslojd's in Sweden where most of our Dala Horses come from: Grannas A. Olssons Hemslojd and the Nils Olssons Hemslojd. See PAGE 8 for the size and colors of Dala Horses we carry.

Designer: Karna Peterson

"Tomtar" is the Swedish plural of "tomte". We have lots! According to a century old tradition, every home and farm has its own tomte, a good-natured little elf that lives in the hayloft or attic year-round. Though he can't be seen, people know he is there because of the tiny footprints left in the snow. He is a friend to the animals and takes care of all that needs taken care of while the humans are asleep. A tomte can be very useful to a farm, bringing prosperity and fortune when treated well. All he asks in return for his work is a bowl of Christmas porridge. If you don't give him this, however, he will become very mischievous and cause serious problems. Today, some believe the tomte delivers Christmas gifts to families' doors from his sled.
